Reading at home

By frequently listening to stories, poems and information texts that they cannot yet read for themselves, children begin to understand how written language can be structured.

By reading together, children can also be shown some of the processes for finding out information within a book, e.g. modelling the use of a contents page or index.

This page gives you some tips of questions you can ask to ensure your children are accessing key reading skills at home.

When writing in their monkey books, it is also great to include the skill being used:

E.g.

Well done, you predicted what you think will happen next.

Or

Well done, you found Angry A sounds.
